ARREST YOUTHS AS "CAS" THIEF GANG; TWO ARE RELEASED

Police Say Bucks County
Crew Stole Accessories
For Fun

SOLD FOR PROFIT

Eight From Upper Section Are Taken Into Custody
Of Police

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 8.—Eight youths accused of stealing gasoline and stripping accessories from the automobiles of Bucks county farmers were rounded up by State police last night. Two others were released for lack of evidence.

Those arrested are Lewis Fritz and his brother, Joseph, of Allentown; Paul Werback, of Allentown; Earl Cope, Applebachville; Calvin Styer, Rocky Ridge; Howard Schaffner, Quakertown; and Earl V. Ruth, Sellersville. They range between eighteen and twenty-two.

They were held in $500 bail each when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Irvin M. James, of Doylestown. Jacob Falk, Thatcher, and Leroy Saxe, Quakertown, were released for lack of evidence.

According to Gowan and Simmons, policemen of the Doylestown barracks, who made the arrest, all the youths have admitted being involved in the thefts which it is estimated have totaled $3,000 in the last month, but claimed to have done it in the spirit of fun, although selling the plunder.

The policeman testified most of the plunder has been recovered and taken to the barracks. They also declared Lewis Fritz admitted to stealing enough tires to buy an automobile.

Many farmers have been the victims of a band whose depredations have extended over a wide area. In a night raid on Quakertown, tires and accessories were stripped from four cars parked in the central part of the town.

In another raid five tires and all removable accessories were stripped from the automobile of the Rev. K. A. Hertz, of Passer, and tires stolen from cars at five nearby farm houses.

The garage of George Amy, Richwood, was cleaned of all tires and equipment and five tires and accessories were stripped from the car of Anna Clymer, Thatcher's Mills. Activities have not been confined to automobiles as several farmers have tried to steal their tractors in the morning, only to find the gasoline tank had been drained.

Kirkpatrick's father is a constable in Springfield township and Cope's father is manager of a large creamery. The fathers of some of the other youths are widely known farmers.

Police intimated the youths had involved several others and more arrests may be made.

Old Torresdale Park Swept By Forest Fire

Sweeping through the old Torresdale Park, Red Lion road and Frankford avenue, a miniature forest fire destroyed a scenic railway, several old buildings and ten acres of fine timber yesterday afternoon.

Handicapped by lack of fire hydrants and forced to couple more than 5,000 feet of hose lines, firemen had to fight a hard battle. Several were overcome by smoke. The park property is owned by Homer Stevenson and the estate of his deceased sister, Mrs. Alice Nelson. Both the Stevenson and Nelson families live close to the spot where the fire started, shortly after 3 P. M. in a patch of grass along Frankford avenue.

Before firemen responded to an alarm, Stevenson, his nephew, Harold Nelson, and neighbors, made a vain attempt to head off the flames. Fighting desperately with brooms, shovels and axes, they were driven back by fire and smoke, and the house of Matthew D'Intero and his family caught fire. The blaze then spread to an adjoining bungalow, which is unoccupied, and then to a garage used by D'Intero.

Next the flames attacked an old scenic railway, abandoned ten years past, and the flames could be seen for miles. After the fire had spread to ten acres of woodland, the firemen wet down other portions and controlled the blaze. Stevenson was treated nearby for burns.

Co. Farm Agent Talks To Doylestown Kiwanians

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 8.—Addressing the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown last night at the weekly dinner meeting at Brunner's Cafe, County Farm Agent William F. Greenwalt said there exists a lack of understanding between the farmer and the business man of the town and city.

He likened the gap that he said existed between the two classifications, as a stone wall, strong and cold. The proper relationships between the two, he said, is going to do more to better agricultural conditions than any one thing.

Legislation, the County Agent declared, is not going to solve the farm problem, since much of the legislation presented is bunk. The trouble to a great extent with the rural people, he contended, is their lack of knowledge of the modern marketing problems.

"It has not been the habit of our farmers in the East to reply when they are asked what business they are engaged in, to say, 'the farming business.' No, they simply say, 'I am a farmer.' The business man will say, 'I am in the manufacturing business.' The farmer forgets the business part of the game, and farming is just as big a business as any business in the city."

Mr. Sprengle suggested that Kiwanis carry out two programs during the coming year. One meeting should be devoted to the farmers with every Kiwanian bringing a farmer as his guest and to have this meeting addressed by a Kiwanian who will tell the farmers the principles of a service club. The next program he suggested was a farmers' picnic during the summer on a well known farm, where Kiwanians and farmers could rub shoulders together and the farmer could see what is accomplished by the leading farmer of that community.

—On Thursday, April 14, the last district meeting of the season of the P. O. of A. will be held at Morrisville, Pa.

GOVERNOR FISHER OPPOSES PAYMENT OF OLD AGE PENSIONS

HARRISBURG, Apr. 8.—Governor John S. Fisher is opposed to the Constitutional amendment which would impose the payment of old age pension in Pennsylvania.

The Governor today outlined his reasons for his opposition to the plan "which would fasten on the state a great list of civil pensions."

After summing up his various reasons for opposing the plan, the Governor characterized it as "the most serious business problem the State has ever been called upon to face in time of peace."

The Governor's statement said:

"I am opposed to the constitutional amendment proposing old age pension. I am opposed to any legislation constitutional or statutory which would fasten on the state a great list of civil pensions. Our program for taking care of the dependent and needy is most liberal from both foreign and local agencies."

K. OF C. AND A. A. FIVES IN BIG BATTLE TONIGHT

Stage Is All Set for the Cage
Contest in High School Auditorium

EXPECT LARGE CROWD

The stage is all set for the greatest basketball classic ever held in Bristol, when the Bristol A. A. and the Knights of Columbus teams, winners of the first and second half honors in the local league, face each other, in the first of a series of three games for the cup tonight in the high school auditorium.

It will be interesting to watch these two great quintets on a regulation floor, where they will have a great opportunity to show the floor work for which they are famous.

Both teams are confident of victory, and the fans are assured of some real fast basketball. The Knights, fresh from their victory over the Tacony "Caseys," will in all probability start with "Lefty" Rogers and "Coggie" Coyle at forward, James Sweeney at center, and "Joe" Dugan and "Eddie" McVaine at guard.

The Bristol A. A. will use "Les" Bailey and "Gene" Dugan at forward, "Date" Fagley at center, with "Jim" Sackville and Captain "Al" Bauer at the guard positions.

"Chick" Harper, who has been a stalwart at guard for Bristol, received a badly sprained ankle while playing against the Celtic a week ago, and it is doubtful if he will be able to play tonight.

There will be a preliminary game between the Hibernians and Celtic starting at 8 o'clock, sharp.

The seating arrangements have been taken care of. The side seats will be reserved and the end seats open to general admission, with seats and comfort for everyone. A special invitation has been extended to the ladies.

The games will be refereed by Harman Batzel, the well-known official, who has refereed most of the Pennsylvania University games at the new Palasra this season.

RESPONSIBILITY IN TRAGEDY DISPUTED

Deaths of Two Perkasio Firemen On Quakertown Run
Still Undecided

A HEARING IS HELD

QUAKERTOWN, Apr. 8.—In order to determine the responsibility for the deaths of Willis Sames and Jacob C. Cronhamel, two Perkasio firemen, killed while making a test run to Quakertown on the evening of April 1, 1926, the case may be carried to court. No decision has been reached by the Compensation Board.

Several weeks ago, a similar meeting was held at Perkasio, for the purpose of determining if Perkasio was not responsible. Referee Boaner, of the board, felt that Quakertown should be held responsible, as the Perkasio company was under the control of the Quakertown Fire Department, who were conducting the test.

The petition at the hearing was dismissed and it was recommended that relatives file a petition to determine whether or not Quakertown should be held responsible.

The Quakertown Fire Company is covered by insurance (representing Quakertown) as is the Perkasio company.

The case is attracting wide attention, and is being followed with much interest. The accident in which the firemen lost their lives occurred a short distance outside the borough limits on Station Road, when the huge truck sideswiped a telephone pole, hurling the firemen to their death. The Perkasio company as well as a number of other nearby companies were making a test run to learn who could reach Quakertown and make hose connection quickest. The test was made by recommendation of the State Fire Marshall, as an emergency measure.

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

By William Parker
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 8.—The revolution gripping China has extended to art circles in San Francisco's Chinatown. "The Modern Revolutionary Chinese Artists' Club" has been organized and is holding an exhibition at 15 Waverly Place.

Every exhibit is of the impressionistic or futuristic school, and all from the brushes of young Chinese students in the quarter. None of the students is more than twenty years of age and one is only fifteen.

The exhibition is conducted by Yun, aged twenty, an Americanized native Chinese who wears a basque cap on his head and fuzz on his chin.

Whoever planted a dynamite bomb recently under the restaurant of "Mimi" certainly never ate there. Gourmets the world over talk about the food to be obtained at "Mimi's." It's a cafe visited by people who chatter offhand about favorite eating places along the Paris boulevards, London's Soho and New York's avenues.

It's difficult to find, up an alley and hidden back of flat buildings; and even then you can't get in if "Mimi" doesn't like your looks. It's that sort of place.

"Mimi" is Mimi Imperato, a ponderous man whose neck is so big his collars are made especially for him. His card reads "Actor and former manager of world famous theatrical artists." The walls are covered with business and social cards of thousands of persons, and innumerable artists and theatrical people have left their autographed sketches and photographs.

It was in "Mimi's" that the lamented "Robert Louis Stevenson cocktail" was invented, of which it was said: "Drink one Friday and shake yourself Monday and you still feel it."

One of the last of the noted—or was it notorious—"French" restaurants of San Francisco went the way this week of what Thackeray described the fate of all good eating places. The "French" restaurants became so popular that even the police heard about them.

San Francisco and those who knew the city and its gayety a decade and more ago are now offered—muslin signs announce—that they may buy memberships in a club which is to occupy the half dozen floors which once comprised a "French" restaurant and hotel in the downtown district.

One by one these "French" restaurants have disappeared. Of the numerous "Poodle Dogs," as they frequently were named, one was eight stories and with a private driveway, elevator in the rear of the building and with a turntable for autos to enable cars to come and go without their occupants being seen.

This specific "French" restaurant now is a decorous "family" hotel which caters to guests of quiet and sober habits.

COLORED MAN IS FOUND DEAD ON BED IN BUNGALOW

John Wooding Had Been Suffering from Tuberculosis
For Some Time

LIVED BY HIMSELF

Body Found by William Stegner,
Who Often Visited
The Deceased

LANGHORNE, April 8th.—A colored man, who had made his home in a small bungalow at Langhorne Heights, was found stretched across the bed, yesterday, dead.

The man, whose name was given as John Wooding, had been occupying the small building, owned by John Sullivan, of Philadelphia, for the past several months.

Wooding was found lying across the bed, fully clothed, by William Stegner, who had made it a habit to stop at the place each night to inquire if Wooding needed anything. It is said the colored man had been suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs, and Stegner on frequent occasions took him food.

After finding the victim last evening, Mr. Stegner summoned J. Hibbs Buckman, who lives nearby, Buckman in turn sending for Coroner John Sweeney, of Doylestown. Sweeney paid a visit to the bungalow which the dead man had occupied, and later viewed the body at the morgue of Charles Haefner, Hulmeville. He issued a certificate of death due to tuberculosis.

The bungalow of which John Sullivan was the owner, was used as a summer cottage by the Sullivan family, and it was during the winter that Wooding came to the place and stayed. Those living nearby did not know much about the affairs of the deceased, and it was from a hunter's license found among his possessions that his correct name was learned.

The license was taken by Coroner Sweeney, who will endeavor to learn something about the victim's relatives and his former place of living.

MISS MARTHA THOMAS QUITS WOMEN'S LEAGUE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Apr. 8 (I.N.S.)—Attacking the policies of Mrs. John O. Miller, State chairman, Miss Martha G. Thomas, first vice-chairman and legislative chairman, today announced her resignation from the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters.

At the same time six other resignations of leaders in the League were announced. Two other women prominent in the League also have announced their intention to resign at the meeting of the board of directors in Philadelphia tomorrow unless a new policy is adopted.

Miss Thomas in announcing her resignation issued a statement in which she cited specifically the various attempted moves made, she charges, by the State chairman and which she has opposed.

In addition to favoring the closing of the Philadelphia headquarters and the legislative headquarters in Harrisburg, Miss Thomas charged that an attempt had been made to make Pittsburgh the head of the League activities "where apparently the State organization would be only an appendage of the Allegheny County organization."

Miss Thomas further charged that an attempt is being made to "scrap" the present basic and fundamental educational program in favor of getting results by simply getting an order from Mr. Mellon (W. L. Mellon, the Republican State Chairman), that a substitute the boss system for the League system."

During the present session of the Legislature, Miss Thomas as legislative chairman of the League repeatedly has attacked the policies of the Republican state chairman, especially since his injection into the ballot reform fight and his attitude toward the original policy of Governor John S. Fisher.

"I am making this public declaration for the reason that the program and objects of the League as I and many others see them are matters of public interest," Miss Thomas said. "In fact the League has such a special relation to the people and to public opinion that such a declaration as this is absolutely required. I could not work in the League, nor could others, unless we were absolutely free to speak and act in the way which has been the case during the present legislative session, especially since by appointment of the board of directors I was named as legislative chairman."

—Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy, of Jefferson avenue; Mrs. Jack Gavegan and Miss Margaret Barrett, of Beaver street; and Mr. and Mrs. John Lippin, of Langhorne, Pa., motored to Conowingo, Md., on Sunday and visited the new Conowingo Project.

HARRY HUGH TELLS OF BASKETBALL CAREER

Relates Reminiscences of 25 Years Ago, Here, As

EXCHANGE CLUB GUEST

With an interesting talk on basketball interwoven with pleasing remembrances and reminiscences of that period some 25 years ago, when Bristol acquired considerable glory and renown, by winning the National Basketball League championship, the Bristol Exchange Club enjoyed a pleasant time last evening when it entertained as its guest, Harry Huff, of Trenton, N. J., who as forward on the old Bristol team, easily acquired a reputation which placed him among the leading basketball "stars" of that period.

To many of the men present, who were old enough to remember, it was pleasant to recall the days when "Phenom" Smith gave Bristol its greatest basketball team. The old brick building, now known as the Colonial Theatre, which at the time was converted into a basketball court, was associated with many pleasant memories, but into which was always injected as the foremost figure, the guest of the evening, Mr. Huff, who was undoubtedly the greatest basketball player this section ever produced.

Mr. Huff was a pleasing speaker and for 45 minutes entertained those present, with remembrances of basketball as it was played in Bristol, a quarter of a century ago. He recalled his teammates, among whom were Mulliner, Kline, Bennett, Plant and Everingham and gave a bit of their life history, after the breaking up of the Bristol team. John Huff, he said, was eager to acquire an education and enrolled as a student in Peddie Institute. He was soon offered the position of basketball coach, and for a number of years, turned out a winning team. All the time he was attending classes with the boys in the school, and striving to attain the goal which he had set out to accomplish. Last year Bucknell University offered him a position as coach and this last winter he developed the greatest basketball team Bucknell ever had.

Mr. Huff himself, continued in the game for a number of years following his career in Bristol. One year he coached the Princeton College quintette and for two years was basketball coach at the University of Pittsburgh. He is now in the insurance business in Trenton.

He said he had a warm place in his heart for Bristol, as it was here he received his initial start when a mere boy, in the basketball game. Trenton, his home town, would not accept him in professional basketball because of his age, but he had the satisfaction of playing with the Bristol team in that greatest of games, when it defeated the invincible Trenton team by the score of 46 to 19. The teams which Bristol played against in the National League, were New York, Trenton, Millville, Camden and Penn Bicycles Club of Philadelphia. The games were faster in those days, said Mr. Huff, because a cage was used, and the ball was constantly in play, until a player fouled or a goal was thrown.

Kline, who played on the Bristol team, was the greatest goal thrower he had ever seen. In the game with Trenton, he had possession of the ball eleven times and threw ten field goals.

Many popular songs were sung by the group and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 8.—Judge William C. Ryan was stricken yesterday at noon while presiding at a term of Civil Court here. It has been rumored that when Court convenes on Monday it will be adjourned until the June term, or else an outside Judge brought in to preside.

The Judge was sitting in a civil case and was in the act of charging the jury when he suffered the attack. He excused himself and retired to his chambers. Those in Court were unaware of his illness until he was found sitting in his rooms.

The Judge's physician, Dr. Allen H. Moore, was summoned and after making an examination ordered the Judge to be removed to his home.

Today it was stated that Judge Ryan was resting comfortably.

Dr. R. Randolph Paxon Dies At Tampa, Florida

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 8.—Word was received today of the death in Tampa, Florida, of Dr. R. Randolph Paxon, who for a number of years practiced medicine here.

Dr. Paxon had a host of friends in Hulmeville and in the surrounding territory, and was well-liked for his genial disposition. At all times he had a cheerful word for whomever he met.

About 28 years ago he came to Hulmeville and answered many calls from ailing people during his period of practice here. A few years ago he accepted the position of resident physician at the Municipal Hospital, Philadelphia, and while engaged at his duties there suffered painful injuries when he fell down an elevator shaft. For several months he had been in Florida, endeavoring to regain his health.

The following very appetizing menu was served to about 34 members and guests: Bouillon, chicken patties, fresh green peas, rice croquettes, potato chips, celery, olives, charlotte russe, coffee.

The tables were very artistically decorated, with yellow and white crepe streamers suspended from the chandelier to the several corners of the tables. The dinner was prepared by several ladies of the class.

Miss Gladys Renk, president of the class, gave words of welcome to those assembled.

After the banquet, the tables were cleared and a sketch entitled "The Harville Shakespeare Club" was given. Those taking part were: The Misses Emily Bracken, Clara King, Gladys Renk, Eleanor Clements, Marian Smith, Mrs. Edna Brady and Mrs. Beatrice Bowen. The sketch was most amusing, and very much enjoyed by the audience.

CRITICS OF THE JURY

Tampering with a jury is impermissible because the law makes it so, but tampering with the jury system is impermissible because public opinion forbids it.

Any movement to effect a change in the jury system in vogue in the United States is doomed to an early and fruitless end. Though recent criticisms might indicate to the contrary, there is nothing in the whole system of government in which the American people have greater faith than in the jury system.

In their hysteria due to so-called crime waves and acquittals of persons "convicted" in the minority public opinion before their trial, some, including a supreme court justice, have spoken favorably of modifying the jury system so as to permit convictions in criminal cases on less than the unanimous vote of the jury.

Some of the arguments employed in support of the idea are that it has proved successful in both civil and criminal courts in some European countries and in civil courts of several states in this country. Perhaps the most effective argument for verdicts by a majority or three-fourths vote is that of the judge who noted that under the unanimous verdict requirement the sole man who holds out is as powerful as the eleven with whom he disagrees, a condition that amounts to one-man rule of the jury. On the other hand, is it not dangerous to convict a man on evidence so weak it cannot convince twelve men or women of his guilt?

Tamperers with the jury system will have a long road to travel so long as Americans continue to look upon that system as one of the bulwarks of freedom and equality.

ILLITERATE

The United States is the biggest business country in the world. And the biggest business in this country is education.

Every year this big and most important of businesses spends $2,500,000,000. It employs 800,000 teachers and thousands of other workers. Directly it serves 26,000,000 children, but indirectly it serves and benefits every man, woman and child in the country.

Great as it is this business has not accomplished its full mission. It has not even solved the elementary problem of teaching the people how to read and write.

According to the census, there are six illiterates among every hundred persons in the United States over ten years of age. This is another way of saying the country's illiteracy rate is 6 per cent. Not a very brilliant record for a country whose annual national income is estimated to be somewhere between $60,000,000,000 and $75,000,000,000 and whose national wealth is set at $100,000,000,000.

In literacy this country is behind France, England, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Netherlands, Switzerland and Denmark. And by states the illiteracy here ranges from as low as 1 per cent. to as high as 22 per cent.

In fairness to this country it must be said, however, that the percentage of literacy among the white, English-speaking people of the United States is as high if not higher than that of the corresponding native class of any other country. The great educational problem in the United States is carrying education to the blacks, Indians, Mexicans and immigrants and the illiterate mountaineers and "prairie rats."

The usual monthly meeting of the Croydon Chamber of Commerce is to be held at the residence of William Bauer, Rosa avenue, this evening.

We all wish Mr. Otto Grupp, Jr., of Cedar avenue, a speedy recovery from a slight touch of the grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Coyne have been visitors in Germantown.

Mr. and Mrs. Tryon, of Cedar avenue, spent a delightful week-end in New York.

Folks of the Croydon Fire House very much regret the death of Mr. John W. C. Buzby, of Rosa avenue. He will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Benjamin Abart, of Elm avenue, is anxiously waiting the delivery of her new Nash sedan.

The Sunday masses at the St. Thomas Aquinas Church are still under the winter schedule—Bristol Pike, 8 o'clock; State Road, 10 o'clock.

Isn't this one of life's real misfortunes?

Transportation is just one of our daily needs. Clothing, housing, education, recreation, savings and insurance must all be taken care of. And isn't the man unfortunate who gets himself burdened with an expensive car before all of his other daily needs are as well taken care of as a Ford will take care of his transportation needs?

SYNOPSIS

John Ballard, a poor orphan, works his way through college, then devotes a brilliant law career to fighting conscienceless railroads, and becomes District Attorney. John loved Viola Huskin, but through curious misunderstandings she married Phil Hardin, his old chum, now President of the local railroad. Jordan, money power behind the road, tries to buy John; failing, he warns him not to become an enemy. A grave accident occurs, due to negligence. John grimly sets plans to put responsible company officials in jail, but gives Phil a chance to explain.

 "John!" he said. "He-hello! I—I'm fearfully upset. A terrible business, this—"

"Terrible, indeed," said John. "Phil—I'm going to speak frankly and plainly. Do you realize that if I do my duty I shall have to have you and every responsible official of this road indicted?"

Phil sprang up, his face white.

"You—you're crazy!" he said. "He was shaking all over; his voice trembled. 'You—you can't do anything like that! It—it's not my fault—it was an accident—the rails spread—it's something that has happened again and again on every railway in the country—'"

"No meeting me in that spirit, Phil," said John. His voice was kind; it was impossible not to feel pity for the broken man who faced stand these things. You aren't familiar with the facts—"

"I am more familiar with them than you think," said John. "I'm more familiar with them than I mean to tell you now—knowing that you'll carry everything I say to Jordan. Phil—Phil—is there no manhood in you? Can't you, even now, stand on your own feet? Haven't you courage enough, now that you've seen the meaning of what's been going on, to cut loose from Jordan and try to redeem yourself. It's not too late. I'll give you all the help I can if you'll trust yourself to me—"

"You don't understand—I can't—I can't—I've got to see Jordan first—"

"Very well!" John rose. "See him. I'll wait till ten o'clock to-night for word from you—and not one minute longer. Good bye, Phil. I want to be your friend—if you'll let me."

CHAPTER VIII

Henry Jordan, grim and silent, heedless of the black looks he got from those in the street who recognized him—for already in Ventnor, thanks to the Sun, public opinion was running high against him—reached the city that afternoon. To reporters, swarming around him, he spoke a few words.

"I have, of course," he said, "no direct connection with the operation of the N. Y. and C. V. I am a heavy holder of the road's securities, and as chairman of the Board of Directors, I have a voice in its financial control. Operating policies, however, are in the hands of the President and his subordinates. I have every confidence in them and their ability."

President Hardin informs me that the tragic and deeply regrettable accident of last night is already being investigated. Pending the outcome of that investigation it would be idle for me to discuss its causes or to speculate upon them. But I can, and will, say that I am convinced that the investigation will show that this was one of those accidents that no human foresight could have averted."

Cold, impassive, unmoved by the gloomy atmosphere of the building, Jordan made his way to Phil Hardin's office. He found Phil white and shaken. He glared at him contemptuously.

"Better take a drink!" he said. "Man—you look as if you'd seen a ghost! Brace up! This is no time for whimpering!"

"You haven't been here," said Phil. "You don't know what it's been like. I've been afraid to go out. I think they'd lynch me if they dared."

"Don't be a fool," said Jordan, angrily. "You've lost your nerve. What are you afraid of? You've no personal responsibility in this wreck."

"Ballard thinks I have—says I have," said Phil. "Mr. Jordan—I want you to know about that—about Ballard's coming here—"

"Ballard, eh?" Jordan's voice was like ice. "If I'd gone to him myself ten years ago instead of trusting you, like a fool, he'd be in our employ right now. What's he up to?"

Phil told him of John Ballard's coming and his threat.

"I see," said Jordan. "Think he's bluffing, Phil?"

"He never bluffed in his life, Mr. Jordan. It's not his game."

"What's the idea, then? Is he trying to hold us up? He's got a good chance to do that if that's what he's after. I'm prepared to admit that much."

"I wish that were all it came to," said Phil. "No, John's as straight as a string. You've got to understand that and act on that idea, Mr. Jordan. Do you know what I think? I think we've got to do as he says. Clean up. Put the road in shape. We—I can't face the possibility of more preventable wrecks."

"You talk like a fool!" said Jordan, angrily. "If you think I'm going to let any backwoods district attorney bluff me into altering carefully defined and well thought out policies you're mistaken. Can't you see what it would mean for us to come out now and say we were going to put the road into first class shape? Why, it would be an admission that we'd been negligent before. We'd be lucky, after all, to escape with a three or four million dollar bill for damages—there'd be no limit to what they could bleed us for this wreck alone—to say nothing of all the pending damage suits in other cases."

"I'd rather have it that way than go to jail—"

"You're not going to jail. No one's going to jail. Make up your mind to that. This man Ballard is going to be headed off. I've been up against this sort of thing before, Phil. Men like Ballard are all alike. There's a weak spot somewhere—it's simply a question of plugging away till we find it. Now—let's look into the case of this virtuous young man. You know him. Pay attention to me. How does he stand about women?"

Observations About Events,
Persons and Things Which Are of General Interest. . . .

It was ten years ago April 6th. Newsboys screamed, headlines flared and pulses pounded faster. The blaze of the world conflagration had at last leaped the Atlantic and fired our nation.

We called for men. They came, crowding the recruiting stations and packing the halls of the selective service boards. The war had been raging for three years. They knew the horror into which they were going. Yet they stepped forward willingly, eagerly, almost gaily. Many marched forth from Bristol, as we made an effort to smile a cheerful farewell.

Many of these young men are not here today. They have never returned. Thirty thousand crosses shining white among the green of reviving France mark the spots to which we sent them. Ten years! Time has filled in the jagged shell holes and erased the deep gashes of the trenches. Even poignant memories are dimmed.

Yet there is one thing which cannot grow dim in our memories. The faces of the struggle may have lost their sharp outlines; the danger which hung over the nation may be like a cloud which has passed by, but the sacrifice made by these young men shines out of the past, a clear, bright flame.

Guided by the beacon light of this flame thousands of American men and women are preparing to cross the Atlantic in a great pilgrimage to the fields of crosses. Men of the American Legion who served as comrades with the dead, and women of the American Legion Auxiliary who underwent the anguish of having loved ones at war, are those qualified to take part. They are making their reservations now, ten years from the day when fate reserved a strip of French soil for so many Americans.

There is in this something which turns us to the contemplation of things that stir the emotions and transcend the understanding. The Legion is going to France to hold a great convention. The convention sessions will be held in the Trocadero Palace in Paris where reports will be heard and resolutions will be passed. But out on the banks of the Marne, the Somme, in the woods of the Argonne, the hills of St. Mihiel and the "Flanders" will be other assemblages, more thought compelling, more heart swelling. There the Legion delegates will stand with bowed heads in convention with their dead.

What will be the resolutions which will come from this silent, solemn convention? What will come into the hearts of the men and women of America as they stand there beside the sorrowed rows of crosses? Only those who go will know for the thing will be so big, so choking that it can never come from their mouths after they have returned. Maybe it will be a clearer comprehension of the spirit which enabled these molding forms beneath the crosses to go out and die for an ideal when the call came ten years ago. I. C. IT.

Picked up on the streets by two detectives who found him in an intoxicated condition, McCormick was taken before Mayor E. S. Hugentugler in police court on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or spend thirty days in jail.

Unwilling to spend the thirty days in jail, McCormick tendered the mayor a check for $25 in payment of his fine. The man was released and the city cashed the check but soon it came back from the bank marked "insufficient funds."

Acting upon orders from the mayor, Chief of Police A. H. Stevens swore out a warrant before a local alderman charging McCormick with passing a fraudulent check. McCormick was re-arrested and placed under bond for a hearing.

To Examine Eligibles For 2,500 Prohibition Positions

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 8.—The United States Civil Service Commission today launched its country-wide campaign to recruit eligibles for the 2,500 positions in the Bureau of Prohibition which were classified under the civil service law by the Act of March 3, 1927. The Commission announced open competitive examinations for the following positions:

- 1 Chief of field division, at $6,000 a year.
- 5 Prohibition zone supervisors, at $5,200 a year.
- 24 Prohibition administrators, at $4,000 to $6,000 a year.
- 24 Assistant prohibition administrators (enforcement work), at $3,200 to $5,200 a year.
- 24 Assistant prohibition administrators (permissive work), at $3,300 to $5,200 a year.
- 50 Deputy prohibition administrators, at $3,000 to $4,600 a year.
- 2 Field office inspectors, at $3,800 to $5,900 a year.
- 4 Associate field office inspectors, at $3,000 to $5,000 a year.
- 18 Senior prohibition investigators, at $3,800 a year.
- 109 Prohibition investigators, at $3,600 a year.
- 52 Junior prohibition investigators, at $2,400 a year.

238 Prohibition agents, at $2,400 a year.

1260 Junior prohibition agents, at $1,800 a year.

102 Warehouse watchmen, at $1,140 to $1,800 a year.

74 Attorneys, at $1,860 to $5,200 a year.

The Civil Service Commission states that the examinations will be practical, each kind specially designed to test the qualifications and fitness of the applicants to perform the particular branch of the work for which that kind of examination is held.

The examinations for investigators below the senior grade, those for agents of all grades, and those for warehouse watchmen will require the assembling of competitors in examination rooms for written mental tests. These will be given in approximately 600 cities throughout the country. The other examinations listed do not include written mental tests in examination rooms.

All of the examinations will include ratings on training and experience, a searching oral test, and a rigid character investigation made by the Civil Service Commission with the assistance of other Government agencies.

In order to give the oral tests it will be necessary for the Commission to send investigators to interview applicants in various parts of the country. The character investigations will be made with the most painstaking care. Because of these two features of the examinations, the testing of applicants for the 2,500 newly-classified positions under the Bureau of Prohibition is one of the largest single tasks ever undertaken by the Commission.

Fingerprints will be made of all applicants who attain eligible ratings.

These will be used to check the accuracy of the applicants' statements as to arrest, indictment, or conviction for crime or misdemeanor. The Civil Service Commission feels that any person who is worthy of appointment to a position under the Bureau of Prohibition will not object to the most searching investigation into his past life.

The act bringing these positions into the competitive classified service provides that those now employed who were not appointed in accordance with the civil service law must compete with others in examinations if they wish to have an opportunity to retain their positions.

Copies of the examination announcements and application blanks may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from Stewart Wilson, District Secretary, Philadelphia Post Office. Information as to the proper method to pursue in applying may also be obtained from Howard R. Thornton, Bristol Post Office. The examination announcements give detailed information regarding the scope of the examinations and the requirements for entrance thereto.

TUNNEY'S EX-FRIEND SEES HIM AS A "CAKE WALK"

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Apr. 8.—It may be of fleeting interest to Gene Tunney to know that his ex-friend and now his severest critic without a contest, Tim Mara, regards the champion as a cake walk, a 1 to 10 shot, against the field of heavyweight contenders as they stand today. Mara is a successful race track bookmaker so the quoting of odds with him is not idle converse; he is a professional football promoter. Hence to him money is no object provided it is someone else's, and he is one of a most select few whose dinero rods with Tunney against Dempsey, therefore his words are wisdom until such time as bigger and better ones turn up.

He, however, named Tunney as a stand-out today with at least one reservation to the effect that all bets were off if Dempsey succeeded in coming back to his 1923 form, it being his contention that Jack Kearns and not Gene Tunney beat the ex-champion. Lacking definite knowledge of Dempsey's condition, Mara intimated that he was forced to regard Jack Sharkey and Jimmy Maloney as the best of the contenders and here again another reservation was interpolated.

It was to the effect that Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, must not be considered a member of the field.

"I think Loughran can beat all of them except Tunney," Mara said. "He's too fast and too smart for the rest of these fellows and I think they know it. Anyhow, I notice that none of them is giving him a tumble."

"Against Delaney for the light heavyweight title, I'd regard Loughran as a sure thing and bet that way. However, if Dempsey could come back like the old Jack, he would beat them all. Tunney included. I figured Kearns would break him down with legal worries, bet heavily on the idea and at Philadelphia I saw Kearns win that fight, instead of Tunney. Still, you can't consider Dempsey until he shows something beside a hospital bill and a lot of skin eruptions."

The Dempsey-Tunney fight was the first of Mara's two betting coups of the last twelve months. The other was the Maloney-Delaney match, where Mara took the short end of 2-1-2 to 1 on Maloney and cleaned up. Now he is inclined to like Maloney over Sharkey on May 19.

"They appeal to me as the stand-out pair in the field just now," he said, "and of the two, I like Maloney. This fellow Paulino will go just so far and no further, as I see him. Heeny won't do and Delaney and McTigue have been relegated to the class where they belong."

"It would be a joke to send Dempsey in with that bunch if Jack had any part of his old stuff. But the easy life he has led and the trouble with his spine and his blood leaves him open to serious question on this come back thing. If he went in with Tunney tomorrow, I'd bet all the money I could raise against him. But if he proved he really can come back, I would bet just as readily the other way."

"As it is, I can't blind myself to Tunney's lead over the others, in spite of the fact that I have been forced to bring suit against him. Nobody realizes just how good Tunney is. He is a poor showman; otherwise, his fine defense, his excellent head and accurate hitting would have impressed more people. And I have neglected to add his most important asset, the care he takes of himself. Say what you will about Gene Tunney, he'll always be ready."
